

Replacement page 19

Abstract

5 An electrically conductive wire coated with a curable coating composition that forms a cured coating having a high partial discharge resistance and good mechanical properties. A process for coating an electrically conductive wire with a curable coating composition and curing the coating composition to form a coating having high partial discharge resistance and good mechanical properties.